rabbinic tradition is in large part a tradition of law and jurisprudence this tradition of law comprehends fields as diverse as the law of evidence and the dietary regimen as laws on credit and debt and the laws of ritual purity it follows naturally that many if not most of the great works of rabbinical literature are law books commentaries on the law and collections of cases the principal legal code or restatement still authoritative among traditional jews is the shulhan arukh compiled by joseph b ephraim karo of safed 1488 1575 and glossed by mozes isserles of cracow 1520 1572 this work published in four volumes provided the rabbinic jurist or magistrate as well as the learned layman with a concise review of the various areas of jewish law that might come to his attention one such area of traditional jewish law was the laws of buying and selling and the laws of fraud in sales this particular domain within traditional jewish commercial law is surprisingly intelligible and fascinating for modern students of jewish tradition buying and selling are just as much a part of the modern world as they were of past ages moreover the student of legal history or comparative law will find that this rabbinical code on sales and fraud in sales provides at a glance a view of the strata of jewish legal development from the ancient period to the sixteenth century among the matters treated in this code are the formation of the agreement to buy and sell the concept of acquisition as it relates to various types of property legal capacity and the requirement of good faith the chapters on fraud reflect the moral and ethical values of jewish tradition which are always implicit and often explicit in the rules of jewish civil criminal and commercial legal codes the material is clearly of interest to modern students of business ethics a synopsis of the law of sale prefaces the work it underscores some of the main features of this area of the law and furnishes some terminology and analysis of the material while this synopsis does note some points of contrast and comparison with roman law and medieval church law it is not intended as a detailed historical or comparative study it serves principally to introduce the text itself and establish some useful lines of understanding and classification the translation of the laws of sale and fraud presented here has been prepared with the utmost care and attention to the technical nuances of legal terminology in both modern and ancient law its apparatus of notes and references includes material on the history of the printing of this translated portion of the jewish legal tradition long accepted as the standard code of jewish law and practice the shulhan aruch was written by rabbi joseph karo in 1565 now in an unprecedented restatement of hoshen hamishpat one of the four sections of the shulhan aruch rabbi emanuel quint brings fresh insight modern scholarship and succinct explication to this brilliant halachic work that will fascinate the educated layperson and advanced scholar alike with this effort rabbi quint fills the long felt need to make this material more accessible a restatement of rabbinic civil law volume ix laws of the paid bailee laws of the lessee laws regarding labor laws regarding borrowed objects laws regarding stealing laws regarding robbery laws of abiding by the laws of the land continues to open the shulhan aruch to the wider audience it deserves rabbi quint the co founder of the jerusalem institute of jewish law an institute dedicated to the study and dissemination of jewish civil law brings his professional expertise to bear on the vast array of jewish legal processes procedures and practices encoded here the reader may be surprised to discover that such a meticulous legal yet not overly religious system fits under the category of jewish law and yet it does clearly illustrating that judaism is not only a religion but also a culture and community beyond a translation a restatement of rabbinic civil law provides the author s own commentary and also incorporates the four centuries of scholarship since the shulhan aruch was written including commentaries and responsa literature ample footnotes help guide the reader every step of the way the result is a comprehensive well organized body of rabbinic jurisprudence available to the english reader for the first time if the shulhan aruch can be said to be the distilled essence of jewish law then a restatement of rabbinic civil law triumphs as a major judicial literary landmark of its own esoteric form of jewish mysticism kabbalah spread throughout the early modern world and became a central feature of jewish life scholars have long studied the revolutionary impact of kabbalah but as yaacob dweck argues they have misunderstood the character and timing of opposition to it drawing on a range of previously unexamined sources this book tells the story of the first criticism of kabbalah ari nohem written by leon modena in venice in 1639 in this scathing indictment of venetian jews who had embraced kabbalah as an authentic form of ancient esotericism modena proved the recent origins of kabbalah and sought to convince his readers to return to the spiritualized rationalism of maimonides the scandal of kabbalah examines the hallmarks of jewish modernity displayed by modena s attack a critical analysis of sacred texts skepticism about religious truths and self consciousness about the past and shows how these qualities and the later history of his polemic challenge conventional understandings of the relationship between kabbalah and modernity dweck argues that kabbalah was the subject of critical inquiry in the very period it came to dominate jewish life rather than centuries later as most scholars have thought
