the reformation formed a new era in the history of the world and was one of those mighty revolutionary events which have a most extensive and lasting effect on the affairs and destinies of mankind but men have been ever since greatly divided in their ideas and judgments concerning it while some have hailed it as a most happy admirable and glorious event fraught with heaven s choicest blessings it has been deemed by others and even by a large majority of the inhabitants of christendom as an exceedingly unfortunate pernicious and execrable occurrence which has produced all manner of mischief and like the opening of pandora s box filled the world with calamities and miseries innumerable the learned and the wise as well as the illiterate and fly foolish have been found among each of these opposite and contending parties their respective opinions and allegations must therefore be entitled to a serious and candid hearing but it is not intended here to go deeply or largely into this disputed subject nor would it well accord with the plan or design of this publication some cursory hints however on a few of the most prominent facts will not it is presumed be either impertinent or uninstructive
