real time strategy rts games have consistently been popular among ai researchers over the past couple of decades due to their complexity and difficulty to play for both humans and ai a popular strategy in rts games is a sneak attack where one player tries to maneuver some of their units into the base of their enemy without being seen for as long as possible to surprise their enemy and deal massive damage to their economy this thesis introduces a novel method for finding sneak attack paths in starcraft brood war by combining influence maps with heuristic search the combined system creates paths that can guide units effectively and automatically into the enemy s base by avoiding enemy unit vision and minimizing both travel distance and unit damage for starcraft this involves guiding a loaded transport ship to the enemy s base to drop off units for attack our results show that the new system performs better than direct paths across a variety of maps in terms of total transport deaths total damage taken as well as the total time spent by the transport within enemy vision we then utilize this new system to demonstrate an alternate use a proof of concept for calculating building placements to defend against enemy sneak attacks game feel exposes feel as a hidden language in game design that no one has fully articulated yet the language could be compared to the building blocks of music time signatures chord progressions verse no matter the instruments style or time period these building blocks come into play feel and sensation are similar building blocks where game design is concerned they create the meta sensation of involvement with a game the understanding of how game designers create feel and affect feel are only partially understood by most in the field and tends to be overlooked as a method or course of study yet a game s feel is central to a game s success this book brings the subject of feel to light by consolidating existing theories into a cohesive book the book covers topics like the role of sound ancillary indicators the importance of metaphor how people perceive things and a brief history of feel in games the associated web site contains a playset with ready made tools to design feel in games six key components to creating virtual sensation there s a play palette too so the desiger can first experience the importance of that component by altering variables and feeling the results the playset allows the reader to experience each of the sensations described in the book and then allows them to apply them to their own projects creating game feel without having to program essentially the final version of the playset will have enough flexibility that the reader will be able to use it as a companion to the exercises in the book working through each one to create the feel described
