Presidential Institutions and Democratic Politics 1997 while many comparative analysts see parliamentary government as essential for stable democracy this volume argues that the american presidential system that separates and diffuses power can provide new perspectives for those building democratic institutions in latin america eastern europe and the new republics of the former soviet union the authors recognize risks of rigidity gridlock and excessive centralization in presidential institutions but they also emphasize the unexpected levels of legislative productivity during periods of divided government the dramatic reversal of declining popularity by presidents reagan and clinton and the importance of direct appeals by presidents to the nation after examining the american presidential system the authors focus on the de facto separation of powers in european parliaments and presidentialism in france latin america and eastern europe both trends in european parliamentary systems and the dramatic changes within french presidential institutions suggest that scholars should temper broad generalizations about presidential or parliamentary government

Models of Democracy in Nordic and Baltic Europe 2016-04-15 this book explores the ways in which representative democracy works in two neighbouring collections of european states the nordic denmark finland iceland norway and sweden and the baltic estonia latvia and lithuania starting from a nordic vantage point contributors explore the extent to which aspects of politics function similarly or dissimilarly across the two groups of democratic states acknowledging the differences in models of democracy that occur within each group authors explore the possibility that some of the apparently successful institutional features of nordic politics have somehow influenced politics in the baltic states despite the considerable contextual differences between the two groups the nordic baltic comparison is particularly worthy of study given the comparative stability of the nordic democracies and the half century of occupation by a totalitarian dictatorship that the baltic states endured the central guiding questions are how does political representation work in countries that have a lot in common but also a few significant contextual dissimilarities and what if any relationships between the respective styles of democracy can be identified using a variety of theories perspectives and methods the empirical studies that populate the book seek to offer reflections on these questions

Governing the Global Economy 2011-04-29 this book examines the antecedents and consequences of citizens confidence in different political institutions and authorities its main argument states that a distinction between confidence in representative and regulative institutions and authorities is of crucial importance in order to gain novel insights into the relevance of political confidence for the viability of democratic systems relying on individual level data from the european social survey ess the author provides empirical evidence that citizens from a total of twenty one european countries make a distinction between confidence in representative institutions and authorities and confidence in regulative institutions and authorities furthermore the author shows that both types of political confidence emanate from different sources and are associated with varying consequences overall these findings indicate that confidence in representative and confidence in regulative institutions and authorities establish two qualitatively different types of political confidence each with distinct implications for the functioning and well being of modern democracies

Political Confidence and Democracy in Europe 2019-08 this book is a unique exploration into the gendered politics of the economic crisis in europe it focuses firstly on the changes in the political and economic decision making institutions and processes of the eu and their consequences for gender equality policy secondly the book analyses the gendered impacts of austerity politics on member states gender equality policies institutions regimes and debates finally it addresses feminist and intersectional struggles and resistances against neoliberal conservative and racist politics across europe the authors consider the gendered politics of the economic crisis from a variety of feminist approaches shedding new light on the concept of the crisis and on questions of politics institutions and intersectionality the case studies included refer to different parts of europe from north to south and from east to west capturing the multifaceted gendered impacts of the crisis the volume will be of interest to students and scholars of politics international relations gender studies economics law sociology social policy and european studies

Gender and the Economic Crisis in Europe 2017-02-22 this book by sonja zmerli and marc hooghe presents cutting edge empirical research on political trust as a relational concept from a european comparative perspective it addresses a broad range of contested issues can political trust be conceived as a one dimensional concept and to what extent do international population surveys warrant the culturally equivalent measurement of political trust across european societies is there indeed an observable general trend of declining levels of political trust what are the individual societal and political prerequisites of political trust and how do they translate into trustful attitudes why do so many eastern european citizens still distrust their political institutions and how does the implementation of welfare state policies both enhance and benefit from political trust the comprehensive empirical evidence presented in this book by leading scholars provides valuable insights into the relational aspects of political trust and will certainly stimulate future research this book features a state of the art european perspective on political trust an analysis of the most recent trends with regard to the development of political trust a comparison of traditional and emerging democracies in europe the consequences of political trust on political stability and the welfare state a counterbalance to the gloomy american picture of declining political trust levels

Political Trust 2011-12-07 this books examines the institutional foundations of coalition government in the ten post communist democracies of eastern and central europe for the 1990 2010 period bulgaria the czech republic estonia hungary latvia lithuania poland romania slovakia and slovenia its central argument is that differences in the arrangement of political institutions systematically explain variations in patterns of multi party government across these states the book starts with the premise that electoral systems and constitutional provisions about the powers the structure and the relationship between parliament and the presidency determine the degree to which political power is dispersed or concentrated in the political system on the basis of these institutional features three groups of states are distinguished with regard to their degree of power concentration the substantive chapters of the book demonstrate how these institutional combinations and differences shape three specific facets of party government which capture the main stages of the lifecycle of coalitions governments the formation of electoral coalitions government formation and government duration specifically three comparative chapters assess the impact of institutional power concentration on the size of electoral coalitions the likelihood that political parties form a minority government and the number of days that a government lasts in office the main finding of the book is that power concentration matters political parties in those democracies where institutions are designed to concentrate political power tend to form large electoral coalitions they tend to form majority rather than undersized governments and they build more durable cabinets in addition the book contains a detailed case study of government formation in hungary and a previously unstudied comparison of indirect presidential elections in four states the czech republic estonia hungary and latvia comparative politics is a series for students teachers and researchers of political science that deals with contemporary government and politics global in scope books in the series are characterised by a stress on comparative analysis and strong methodological rigour the series is published in association with the european consortium for political research for more information visit ecprnet eu Institutional Design and Party Government in Post-Communist Europe 2014-10-30 institutions are the channels of political power this volume explores arend lijphart s life work the design of political institutions all the contributors to this volume share the fundamental insight that the design of political institutions matters in how democracies work the essays in this volume offer both theoretical insights into the context and implications of lijphart s ideas and empirical exploration of the ideas two chapters by thomas koelble and andrew reynolds examine and apply lijphart s insights to south africa while another study by jack nagel explores the fascinating institutional changes taking place in new zealand essays by bernard grofman and rein taagepera examine lijphart s work from a theoretical perspective and place lijphart s work in the wider neo institutionalist school of thought milton esman applies the principle of power sharing to mobilized communities not only in democratic societies but also to those which are governed by authoritarian rule bingham powell offers an empirical approach to the crucial question of the connection between political institutions and responsiveness of policy makers markus m l crepaz and vicki birchfield argue that in this age of globalization countries with consensual political institutions will not only systematically refract the pressures of globalization but will be able to absorb the domestic consequences of globalization more successfully than majoritarian countries finally arend lijphart responds to the arguments made in these essays extending and adding novel concepts and insights to his conceptual framework the book will be of interest to political scientists lawyers and sociologists who study institutions the impact of electoral systems and constitutional design in addition those who study globalization will be attracted by the relevance of domestic political institutions and their refractory effects as the tides of globalization wash against the domestic shores markus m l crepaz is associate professor of political science university of georgia thomas a koelble is associate professor of political science university of miami david wilsford is president and professor the institute for american universities
