in the late eighties large scale control operations were carried out to control a major desert locust upsurge in africa for the first time since the banning of organochlorine pesticides these operations relied mainly on non persistent pesticides such as organophosphates and pyrethroids the amount of pesticides sprayed and the area covered were probably the highest in the history of locust control and raised criticism with respect to efficacy economic viability and environmental impact as a consequence applied research into the problem was intensified both at the national and the international level with the goal of finding new and environmentally sound approaches and solutions to locust and grasshopper control emphasis was laid on developing new control agents and techniques when the war ended on august 15 1945 i was a naval engineering cadet at the kure navy yard near hiroshima japan a week later i was demobilized and returned to my home in tokyo fortunate not to find it ravaged by firebombing at the beginning of september a large contingent of the american occupation forces led by general douglas macarthur moved its base from yokohama to tokyo near my home i watched a procession of american military motor vehicles snaking along highway 1 this truly awe inspiring cavalcade included jeeps two and a half ton trucks and enormous trailers mounted with tanks and artillery at the time i was a 21 year old student in the machinery section of engineering at the tokyo imperial university watching that magnificent parade of military vehicles i was more than impressed by the gap in industrial strength between japan and the u s that realization led me to devote my whole life to the development of the japanese auto industry i wrote a small article concerning this incident in nikkei sangyo shimbun one of the leading business newspapers in japan on may 2 1983 the english translation of this story was carried in the july 3 1983 edition of the topeka capital journal and the september 13 1983 issue of the asian wall street journal the topeka capital journal headline read macarthur s jeeps were the toyota catalyst in nature radiata pine is very localised and an obscure tree species despite the romantic character of much of its natural habitat that obscure status and the lack of any reputation as a virgin timber slowed its due recognition as a commercial crop nevertheless it has become a major plantation forest crop internationally it has become the pre eminent commercial forest species in new zealand chile and australia with important plantings in some other countries it consequently features prominently in the international trade in forest products in addition to its importance in domestic markets of grower countries very fast growth considerable site tolerances ease of raising in nurseries and transplanting and ease of processing and using its wood for a range of products and purposes have made it the utility softwood of choice almost everywhere it can be grown satisfactorily abundant genetic variation and its amenability to other management inputs created special opportunities for its domestication the story of its domestication forms a classic case history in the development of modern commercial forestry with trailblazing in both genetic improvement and plantation management this inevitably meant a learning process that provided instructive lessons especially for tree breeders dealing with some other species paradoxically the plantation monocultures have played and can continue to play an important role in protecting natural forests and other forms of biodiversity given the attractions of growing radiata pine there were inevitably cases of overreach in planting it with lessons to be learnt economic globalisation has meant globalisation of pests and disease organisms and the scale on which radiata pine is grown has meant it has been the focus of various biotic alarms none of which have proved catastrophic temptations remain however to pay less than due attention to some aspects of risk management the chapter structure of the book is based on historical periods beginning long before any important human influences and ending with a look into what the future might hold for the species and its role in human and ecological sustainability almost throughout there has been complex interplay between the technical aspects local social and economic factors various types of institution the enthusiasm and drive of some very influential individuals and tides of economic ideology threads that needed to be woven together to do the story justice since the first edition of clinical manual for assessment and treatment of suicidal patients was published in 2005 advances have been made that increase our understanding of suicidal and self destructive behavior although clinicians cannot unerringly predict which patients will die by suicide they can focus more successfully on early identification of suicidal behavior and effective intervention and this new edition of the clinical manual thoroughly explores not only assessment of suicidality but what comes after an at risk patient has been identified the authors argue that treating specific psychiatric disorders is not enough to prevent suicide and they offer clinicians the necessary information and strategies to bridge that gap the authors main premise is that suicide is a dangerous and short term problem solving behavior designed to regulate or eliminate intense emotional pain a quick fix where a long term effective solution is needed and this understanding is the underpinning of the assessment and treatment strategies the authors recommend the content of this new edition has been thoroughly reviewed and revised and substantive changes have been made to specific chapters to ensure that the book represents the most current thinking and research while retaining the strengths of the previous edition the chapter on assessment has been revised to put the fundamental components of effective treatment in a clinical case oriented context and includes an easy to use assessment protocol that allows clinicians to determine where individual patients stand on seven dimensions cognitive rigidity problem solving deficits heightened mental pain emotionally avoidant coping style interpersonal deficits self control deficits and environmental stress and social support deficits the many issues involved in the use of psychotropic medications in suicidal patients are addressed in a new chapter which includes information on the relevant classes of drugs such as antidepressants and anti-anxiety agents and the issues that may arise with their use including side effects degree of lethality and tendency to aggravate suicidality on introduction and withdrawal of the medication the chapter on special populations has been expanded to include adolescents elders and patients with co-occurring substance abuse or psychosis because of additional vulnerabilities treating these groups may call for the use of added or special techniques to ensure the best therapeutic outcomes primary care physicians are the first point of contact for many patients and they may require additional preparation in order to assess and respond to those experiencing suicidal thoughts the chapter suicidal patients in primary care explores strategies for screening recognizing and assessing risk treating the initial crisis and developing a crisis management plan tips for success appear at intervals and the essentials are included at the end of each chapter highlighting the most important concepts in addition there are scores of helpful charts and exercises practical accessible and reader friendly the clinical manual for assessment and treatment of suicidal patients is not an academic book but rather is one designed to become an indispensable part of clinicians working libraries
